History of Fort Worth Charter

- 1873: Legislature grants Fort Worth's original charter.
- 1912: Voters of Texas adopt home rule amendment to state constitution for cities with populations of 5,000 or more.
- 1924: Fort Worth adopts first home rule charter, creating council-manager form of government.
- 1924-2006: Charter amended 13 times.

Amending the City Charter

- Under state law, a city charter may not be amended more often than every two years.
- The city council approves the submittal of charter amendments to the voters.
- In Fort Worth, the usual practice has included a charter review task force and a public hearing process to advise the city council.

Contents of Home Rule Charters

- Form of government: mayor-council; council-manager; commission
- Details about governing body: size, qualifications, terms, term limits, method of electing officials, compensation, vacancies, powers of the mayor, etc.
- Selection of administrative personnel
- Publication and passage of ordinances
- Creation of boards and commissions
- Annexation
- Municipal finances and issuance of debt
- Personnel functions
- Conflicts of interest and ethical matters
- Elections, initiatives, referendums, and recalls
- Franchises
- Planning and zoning

Council-Manager Benchmark Cities As Selected by Task Force

Texas

Austin

Dallas

El Paso

San Antonio

Other States

Charlotte

Kansas City

Oklahoma City

Number of Council Members: Background

- The city council is currently composed of the mayor who is elected city-wide and eight council members elected from single-member districts.
- Each council member in Fort Worth represents approximately 101,000 citizens.
- In Austin, Dallas, El Paso, and Oklahoma City, each council member represents fewer than 100,000 residents.
- In San Antonio, however, each of their ten council members represents more than 140,000.

Number of Council Members: Questions

- Would increasing the number of single-member districts, perhaps from eight to ten, provide all Fort Worth residents with better representation?
- Would increasing the number of districts provide minority groups, such as Hispanics and African-Americans, with better representation?
- Would increasing the number of districts provide better representation for residents from different geographic areas, including older urban neighborhoods within Loop 820 and newer suburban neighborhoods beyond the Loop?

Terms of Office: Background

- Fort Worth's mayor and city council members currently serve two-year terms and are elected in odd-numbered years.
- Council members in Dallas and San Antonio also serve for two years.
- Council members serve for three years in Charlotte and for four years in Austin, El Paso, Kansas City, and Oklahoma City.

Terms of Office: Questions

- Could longer terms increase the effectiveness of the mayor and council members?
- Would longer terms in any way reduce their accountability?
- Should the cost savings of holding less frequent elections, i.e. up to approximately $550,000 per municipal election, be a significant factor in this decision?

Staggered Terms: Background

- Fort Worth's mayor and city council now serve concurrent two-year terms.
- Dallas, San Antonio, Charlotte, and Kansas City also have concurrent terms.
- Austin, El Paso, and Oklahoma City stagger their terms.

Staggered Terms: Questions

- Would staggered terms provide the city council with greater continuity and stability?
- Is it important to limit the amount of turnover that could occur in any city council election?
- Is it important to elect the mayor and all council members at the same time?
- Do the terms of office, i.e. two years versus three or four years, affect the importance of staggering those terms?
- Should the cost of holding elections be a significant factor in this decision?

Compensation: Background

- The mayor is currently paid $29,000 per year and the council members are paid $25,000, but the time demands on the mayor and council members have increased over the years as the city has grown in size and complexity.
- In comparable cities, salaries range from $24,000 for the mayor and $12,000 for council members in Oklahoma City to more than $123,000 for the mayor and $61,000 for council members in Kansas City.

Compensation: Questions

- Is it important to consider the time demands of the position when setting compensation?
- Is it important to consider the city's budget?
- Would increasing the compensation allow more citizens an opportunity to serve in public office?

Public Engagement Process

- Community outreach

- Six public hearings
- Speakers bureau
- Meeting in a box

- Traditional media

- City News weekly electronic newsletter
- City Times monthly utility bill insert
- Weekly Bulletin from Community Engagement Office
